"My agent secured it for me the other day, and I propose that when we land you and I take a carriage and drive out, so that I can take a look at my newly acquired property." The friend, a tall, black haired, eagle eyed merchant of the southern city, readily agreed, and the two carried out their plan that afternoon.

They found the deserted plantation without much difficulty. Deserted it was indeed and forlorn in the extreme, the plantation. Go long, advance to meet the peddler.

"Heah, wha' ynh doin heah, now? Mis Hamilton, she don' lown tramps roun' dis heah plantation. Go long, now, git out'n heah, quick, now, 's says a burly field hand, advancing toward the peddler in a threatening manner.

"Can't I see your mistress for a moment or some of the women folks about the place? Maybe they would like to buy something out of my pack, 'says the lad (he is no more), his eye traveling about the group of darkies in search of a friendly face.

But not one does he see. The group becomes re-enforced by two or three more, who come running from the cabins, drawn by the unusual excitement, and everywhere he sees hostility. "No, valu can' stay roun' heath no longah," replies the spokesman. "Yuh

HONORS TO COMPANY G.

State Government, Legislature, etc.
Although without guns the boys made a good appearance and were enthusiastically cheered along the route.
Company G, Captain Linwood E. Hanson in command, were met in Boston by the Woburn Brass Band, City Officials, and a Committee of Grand Army men, and duly taken in charge asson as the parade and State House standing to some kind of a misuate standing the Military Alarm, which was intended to announce the departure of the boys from Boston for Woburn, was rung at 11.30, a.m., while in fact they did not leave there until 12.10 p. m. This threw the calculation of the people who intended to witness their arrival out of gear, and caused a long, unpleasant wait on the sidewalks on a windy disagreeable day. They were due at the Highland station at 12.45 p. m.

The Company with the Band left the train at Woburn Highlands and were sum of the law was not made for Woburn.

Portal; Company G. and a long string of interested pany G, and a long string of interested pany G, and a long string of interested citizens.

The march extended from Highlands Station up Main st. to the Common, around the Common to Hammond Square, thence to the Armory, where after a formal addressess of welcome by Mayor Davis, and other brief ceremonies, Company G, 5th Mass. Vol. Regt., the old Woburn Phalanx, resumed citizenship and returned to the persuits of ordinary life.

The boys appreciated the honors extended to them and were very much tended to them and were very much gratified with their reception. They had reason to be, for the people of Wo-burn treated them handsomely. From an early hour in the morning until sun down every American Flag in the city apparently, was flying from masthead in honor of their home-coming; busi-ness houses and public buildings and schools were closed during the march ; all the church bells pealed forth a hearty welcome; and thousands of peo-ple, the girls in Easter hats and ribbons, lined the streets and cheered unti bons, ined the streets and eneered until the welkin rang again. It was a gal-aday, and the "boys in blue" enjoyed it—enjoyed it better than they did that morning last June when the great crowd gathered at the Station to see them "off for the wars," and bid them them "off for the wars, and old them Godspeed and a safe return.

Last night a great banquet was given them at the Auditorium. We have hall has been very ill, but is better. it. There were patriotic speeches, fine music, one of Dill's best gastronomic productions, and a grand good time for all present. Ladies graced the gal-leries and the hall was filled with people.

This closed the reception of Company
G, and returning to their homes.

Company G, 5th Regiment, are at home again, and happy.

The 5th Massachusetts Regiment were raised to fight in the American-Spanish War, and if they failed to see active service on the field of battle it wasn't their fault. Company G, belonged to 5th.

The Regiment rendezvoused at Camp Dalton, South Framingham, Mass., on June 30, 1898, and were mustered into the United States service of July 3, following.

On September 11, 1898, they left Camp Dalton for Camp Mead at Middletown, Pa., and arrived there on Sept. 12.

November 16, 1898, the Regiment were ordered to Camp Wetherell, Greenville, South Carolina, which they reached on Nov. 18, and remained three until March 31, 1899, when they they were mustered out and started for home.

The Regiment lost only 13 by death; Co. G, lost only one. This is a barroutline of the history of the 5th since enlisting to fight the Spaniards.

At 9.30 Monday morning, April 3, 1899, the Regiment reached Boston in good health and spirits and marched in parade from the Southern Station to the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the State House where they were greeted by Governor Wolcott, members of the S

Local News.

— Mr. Thomas J. Feeney, who was sent to Greenville, S. C., by the Boston Herald to report the mustering out of the 5th for that paper, says there was no trouble at all in the Regiment, and that the stories sent North by a few disgrunted privates and published in the papers concerning Col. Whitney and other Regimental officers were wholly without foundation. Col. Whitney was popular with the command and the boys liked him. Mr. Feeney also testified to the fact that Company G were one of the very best in the Regiment and so regarded by the officers. They were a fine, well behaved, and a soldierly company of men, and made no trouble for anybody. He felt proud of the Woburn boys.

— We confess to doubts about seeing the hundred thousand dollar school between the papers concerning the hundred thousand dollar school between the first and the series of the very best in the Regiment and so dierly company of men, and made no trouble for anybody. He felt proud of the Woburn boys.

— We confess to doubts about seeing the hundred thousand dollar school between the first and th the hardred thousand dollar school-thause built here this season. There is a lukewarmness in the public heart that angurs ill for it, and the opinion prevails to some extent that if the leather a lakewarmness in the public heart that augurs ill for it, and the opinion prevails to some extent that if the leather trust is consummated it will be at least 10 years before such a school building is needed in this city, if ever. Therefore conservative minds halt and question the propriety of going ahead with the schoolhouse. When the scheme was first broached, or at least when it began to take on the form of something certain to be, not a few practical minded men opposed it on the ground that the city could not afford to make such a large outlay for school purposes, and they oppose it still. They say that public needs lie in a different direction—for better roads and sidewalks, for instance. There is a good deal in this. On the authority of a high official we are enabled to state that our city finances are in a bad condition; the simple truth is, Woburn is poor; and the plan to spend big money to buy things to put on her back and go hungry for the want of nourishing victuals, is not a wise one. Il dowerer, the matter is ingood hands, from whom the public will soon find out what is to be done concerning it.

— Although the sky was cloudless and the sun shone with some degree of ardor still last Easter Sunday was not a day to wax enthusiastic over so far as weather was concerned, but rather the contrary. A strong north wind prevailed without let or hindrance and coming from the snow clad hills and mountains of upper New England and Canada and boreal regions beyond, comfort was sought at the fireside rather than in fields and groves. In fact, it was cold and unlike the typical Easter Sunday. The day was, however, fairly tayorable for the exhibition.

The month of March, 1899 extrainly outmarched the Marches of a number of years past.

November set the pace with two foriroos snow storms, together depositing 20 inches of the article, and blocking steam and electric conveyances.

December gave us only 10 inches and January the small amount for that mouth of only 4, though with plenty of rigidity.

'My favorite role? That is probably my wn secret.'

"'No secrets among the colleagues,' grumbled Pedrocchi.
"No secrets?' was Campobassi's answer. 'Well, perhaps I will play you my favorite role tonight.'
"Oh, the Trovatore!' we exclaimed, for we were to bring out the opera on that day for the first time in Farli. Campobassi shrugged his shoulders again, and we broke off the conversation at this point, as our prima donna

HIS FAVORITE ROLE.

Among my dearest memories of Italy is that of the evenings I used to spend in Venice with the Cavalier Cicogna, as he was known upon the stage. We usually sat in the garden of the Osteria until late into the night—sometimes tete-a-tete, sometimes in the company of old Captain Amati.

By the garden of the Osteria one is not to understand anything like that which the name, used elsewhere, might imply. It was simply a small courtyard about 12 feet square and was paved with slabs of marble. Four high walls inclosed it like a funnel, and from three of these the court was overlooked by windows and balconies which, as a rule, were festconed with grimy washings. But, unless one chose, he need see nothing of this, for above our table—there was space for only one—the branches of a noble vine interlaced to form a thick screen of foliage.

Thus one could sit here quite cool and comfortable, and, when the moon came toward us under the arcades.

''On the evening of the same day the 'Trovatore' was placed on the boards. All that Farli possessed of aristocracy and distinction was present at the theart that night. Not a seat was vacant. The great expectations which were cherished concerning Campobassi's performance were not disappointed. Here the could give himself free rein, and his voice rang through the house not like a dienter—ho, like a choir of tenors. The applause would not cease, and Campobassi was called out repeatedly.

"At last cam the "Stretta.' Now the addience would surely be thrown into of a noble vine interlaced to form a thick screen of foliage.

Thus one could sit here quite cool and comfortable, and, when the moon came toward us under the arcades.

"On the evening of the same day the 'Trovatore' was placed on the board and distinction was present at the theart expectations which were cherished concerning Campobassi's performance were not disappointed. From Mrs. Rank to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter to Mrs. Pinkham from Mrs. M. Rank, No. 2,354
East Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., is a remarkable statement of relief from utter discouragement. She says:

"I never can find words with which to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"Some years ago I had womb trouble and doctored for a long time, not seeing any improvement. At times I would feel well enough, and other times was miserable. So it went on until last October, I felt something terrible creeping over me, I knew not what, but kept getting worse, I can hardly explain my feelings at that time. I was so depressed in spirits that I did not wish to live, although I had everything to live for. Had hysteria, was very nervous; could not sleep and was not safe to be left alone.

"Indeed, I thought I would loss my mind. No one knows what I endured." I continued this way until the last of February, when I saw in a paper a testimonial of a lady whose case was similar to mine, and who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I determined to try it, and felt better after the first dose. I continued taking it, and to-day am a well woman, and can say from my heart, 'Thank God for such a medicine."

THE BEST ~ SPRING TONIG.

As winter passes away it leaves many people feeling weak, depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood needs attention and sensible people always take a tonic at this time of year. Purgatives are not the right medicine — they weaken instead of strengthening.

Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People are the best tonic medicine in the world and do not act on the bowels. They stimulate the appetite, enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and make people feel bright active and strong.

Meanwhile Richard Starkie was in a very unhappy frame of mind. He had just sufficient manhood left to be able to appreciate the unutterable currishness of his own conduct. But that did not tend to make him sorry for what he had done. No, it rather imbittered him still more against his rival. A mania for gambling, inherited from his father, who had bet away a large estate during his life, dying only just in time to save himself from actual starvation, had in the first instance made him short of money.

In order to retrieve his position he bet still more heavily, and again lost. Ill luck pursued him from day to day, till at last, unable to meet the demands

The Chinese Waiter.

The chief glory of an average Chinese in is the waiter. This indispensable functionary is the guardian of all your interests for the time being, and when you are not looking he dives into secrets and matters of your own that seem to ammade and enlighten him to your incovenience and annoyance.

Like his conferers in other and more enlightened countries he hardly everespearates himself from the inevitable napkin, but his badge of waitership is a very practical article with him.

With it in summer he mops his damp brow or bare shoulders, while in winter, wrapped about his head, it protects him from rain and wind.

The Chinese waiter's napkin is put to all kinds of uses besides those just mentioned. It is used as a dishcloth, a mop with which to wipe the floor, a cloth for cleaning and wiping down tashes and a duster.

13 Involving ethical issues and the execution of the Sunday laws, which the Mayor, backed by the religious and moral elements of the city, is rigidly enforcing, the case of The People versus Belcher, for an alleged violation of those laws, offered a rare opportunity for opening Mayor Davis's campaigner for re-election next November. It was seized with avidity by City Solicitority of the Mayor's appointed who in a speech of vigor and eloquence warmly complimented the Mayor on his stitude on the subject of Sabbath breaking, and determination to put stop to it. The City Solicitor is inentire accord with the Mayor in his cursade against violators of the Sunday crusade against violators of the Sunday takes, therefore his address to the Court, which, by the way, had little or nothing to do with the case People vs Belcher, was delivered with unction and "with the spirit and understanding also." He exalted the Mayor for hi-opposition to the desecration of the opposition to the desecration of the Lord's Day, and appealed to the large assembly in the Courthouse to sustain him in his noble work. Mr. Curran told the crowd that the Mayor was supported by all the best elements in this city in his war against an "open" 50 people in training to give a Minstrel Sunday in Woburn, and he appeared to be proud to be permitted, as the Law Office of the city, to aid and assist in — Mr. George Vary, Engineer, has a cause so worthy. In saying these good things about Mayor Davis, Mr. Curran gave former Mayors, unintentionally probably, a rub by picturing the morally unhealthy condition of the city in years past. He appealed to the Court to fine Mr. Belcher heavily for violating the Sunday laws, a crime lonesome and homesick. violating the Sunday laws, a crime deemed heinous by our Puritan fore-fathers. Different minds received Mr Curran's speech in different ways, but a large majority of those who heard and afterwards heard about it regarded it as an official announcement of the intention of Mayor Davis to be a candidate for re-election next fall, and an effort to prepare the public mind for it. It was neatly done by the City Solicitor.

ON OPENING AN OLD TREASURE BOX

Two time dried roses, side by side, Shriveled and dead in my hand they lie. Whence came the one I have quite forgot— Some passing fancy, sudden and hot, That flekered but to die.

The other—ah, what a little thing Can stir to the depths these hear's of ours! It takes me back to the hour of bliss When Phyllis gave with her first sweet kiss This dearest of earthly flowers.

I will buy a shrine for my treasure rare, Some dainty casket, jeweled and rich, And I'll lay it within—if I have the power— But I've pondered here for at least an hour, And I can't tell which is which.

—Gertrude Halladay in Cincinnati Enquirer.

TWO TRAVELERS.

If one were to seek the site of the Red Lion that stood on the Harlem road over a century ago, he could no more discover it than he could the snow that fell at the date of which we write.

The Red Lion was an inn kept by a jolly old Hollander named Peter Steen, and directly opposite was the only grocery store on that part of the island, and this was presided over by Peter's brother, Helst. The brothers were very dissimilar in temperament and appearance. Peter weighed over 200 pounds, was a hard drinker, inveterate smoker and a great talker. Helst was of small stature, weighing only 100 and some odd pounds, and he never drank spirituous liquors nor used tobacco in any form. Neither was he of a loquacious turn. Silent and meditative, he weighed out his sugar and tea to his customers, took their hard money, put it safely away, and grew richer each year than his laughing, rollicking brother Peter.

Every evening, after the store was closed, Helst invariably went across the way, and the brothers, taking chairs, would, when the season permitted, sit in front of the tavern under the trees and converse, while Peter's son, Dyke, attended the bar.

Typewriters and the filind.

"You will often hear people say that the typewriter is a great boon to the blind," remarked a gentleman who knows a good deal about the business, "and so it is in a certain sense of the word. It is comparatively easy for a blind person of average intelligence to learn the lay of the keys, for, as a matter of fact, the ordinary operator never looks at them anyhow, and after that a great vista of amusement and usefulness opens up.

"The sightless operator can begule the darkness by keeping an elaborate diary or by writing a book or engaging in lots of correspondence—in fact, there are a hundred and one ways in which the writing machine makes life brighter and more cheerful for such unfortunates. But, oddly enough, all these advantages are to a considerable extent offset by a little bit of a stubborn fact which was overlocked by the original enthusiants. I refer to the hardening of the finger tips, which forms one of the inevitable and unavoidable results of working on any machine.

"Now, the finger tips are the eyes of the blind and anything that effects their exquisite sensitiveness is a disaster. If the skin becomes the least callous, it is impossible to read the raised letter books, so most of the blind folks who had been hammering away on typewriters and getting a great deal of fun out of them were obliged to stop. I heard the other day that somebody had devised a new system which was supposed to cover the difficulty. The idea was to use only two fingers on the machine, reserving the others for book reading and the ordinary affairs of life."—New Orleans Times-Democrat stitution. They throw side lights upon character and conduct.

Among our early statesmen Aaron Burr was easily the first when considered as an elegant gentleman and man of the world. When he visited Savannah, in the height of his popularity, he charmed everybody, and the city overwhelmed him with social attentions. Burr detested handshaking and permitted no familiarities. He would motion a visitor in his office to a chair and talk to him quietly, never making any gesture beyond the occasional motion of a long white finger.

Despite this rather offish manner, Burr charmed and fascinated. He had wenderful conversational powers, and upon one occasion his oratory melted the whole United States senate to tears.

He never spoke longer than 30 minutes even in his most important law cases. He was cold blooded. After his famous duel, when the death of Hamilton was announced to him, he showed no emotion.

"Did he suffer much pain?" he asked.

The authorities of the Bank of England took alarm, for it appeared that this invention would speedily open the way to a new kind of fraud. The imitation of the engraved plate, however well perfervised, was always discoverable by experienced eyes, and he must be a good forger indeed who could prepare the paper on which the plate was printed so as to imitate the peculiar water marks on the Bank of England notes with anything like success. Captain Charles S. Converse.

In the death of Captain Charles S. Converses, which occurred at his house on Plympton street in this city on Monday night, April 17, 1899, Woburn lost a citizen of sterling worth, and one whom everybody respected and esteemed. He had not been blessed with good health for several years, but had been able to appear on the street and enjoy the social amenities of his hosts of friends until within a few months, during which his disease made slow progress and was paniless. Nothing that the love of a true wife and medical and nursing skill could do for his soon for through his long sickness was with home has been here through life. No editizen of Woburn ever enjoyed the confidence of the people among whom he lived to a greater extent than Captain Converse. He was honest and true in the discharge of every duty of life. He was twice sent to the Legislature by his fellow townsmen and filled the office with ability and credit. Although averse to officeholding, he was for several years an influential member of the Board of Selectment, and was elected to other responsible public positions, in all of which he was conscientious in the discharge of his duties.

Captain Converse was a remarkably active and industrious man all his life until illness compelled him to abandon work and the cares of business. At an early age he engaged in the manufacture of shoes, which trade he left to become an expressman between Woburn and Boston with Ward and Winthrop Wyman. Subsequently he became associated with the late Mr. David D. Hart in the same business; and later with Mr. Ward W. Hart, to whom he sold out more than a dozen years ago. After that he was with the American Express for a short time, but his health becoming poor he was soon obliged to abandon the active duties of life.

THE MAN WHO GROWLED.

- He cursed his luck from day to day, His neighbor's fortune made him frown. He knew the fates were all in league To hold him back and keep him down.
- He cursed because he lost his job, He whined because his child fell ill, He came and went and slouched around And kept on sliding down the hill.
- One day his uncle died and left Him half the fortune he'd amassed,
 And people thought the man who growled
 Had cause to crack a smile at last.
- But when they came to shake his hand.
 The man let many a murmur fall,
 And sat around and growled because

A CAPTURE.

First post had gone on the bugle at Fort Saskatchewan, and the major was sitting on the porch of his quarters, discussing with his adjutant the details of a practice march arranged the fol-lowing week for B troop. The hard blue of the sky changed to purple, then to steel gray, and Saturn appeared low down on the western horizon. Over the level stretches of the prairie the night wind blew softly, rustling the yellow grass. It was peculiarly soothing to the two officers, smoking in lazy con-tentment after an ardnous day in the to the two omeers, smoking in may contentment after an arduous day in the blazing August sun. They paused in their chat, and their thoughts drifted to other lands. They saw faces, the pensive faces of women and the laughing ones of little children, while they watched the stars come out, one by one, in the deepening dusk. They remembered that those same stars shone over the homes which sheltered those women and children; they seemed like sentinel eyes keeping tireless vigil over those loved ones, separated from them by long leagues of hill and plain and by the vicissitudes of a soldier's calling, and their hearts warmed to their friendly twinkling

At length the major's vagrant thoughts reverted to the matter in hand. "Thirty miles will do for the first day," he resumed. "That will take you into the Beaver hills, where there's good camping, now the cool nights keep the flies down. How's regimental No. 2,142?"

Manufacture of the control of the co

NE reason Mrs. Pinkham's treatment helps women so promptly is that they have confidence in her.

Through some of the many thousands of Mrs. Pinkham's friends an ailing woman will be led to write to Mrs. Pinkham at her home in Lynn,

Mass., and will tell her symptoms. The reply, made without charge of any kind, will bear such evidence of knowledge of the trouble that CONFIDENCE HELPS TO belief in her advice at once inspires CURE

This of itself is a great help.

Then the knowledge that women only see the letters asking for advice and women only assist Mrs. Pinkham in replying makes it easy to be explicit about the little things that define the womb. I suffered something terrible, could not sleep nights and thought sometimes that death would be such a relief. To-day I am a well woman, able to do my own work, and have not a pain. I used four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three packages of Sana-tive Wash and cannot thank you enough for the good it did me.

good it did me. Mrs. M. Stoddard, Box 268, Springfield, Minn., "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM-For about four years I was a great sufferer from female troubles. I had backacheall of the time, no appetite, pains in stomach, fainting spells, was weak and my system was completely run down. I also had falling of womb so bad that I could scarcely walk across the floor. After taking two bottles of your Vegetable Compound and one box of Lozengers, can say I am cured."

He sprang into the saddle and clattered off, but at 100 yards he stopped and drawled over his shoulder

"And, ch. I say, sahgeant, remembeh me to the majah and tell him I said, with my compliments, he wa'n't to fo get to mention you in o'debs!"

Then the outlaws spurred across the prairie in the direction of that line beyond which lay another government, driving Bennet's loose horses before them, and that was the last the two troopers saw that day of Crackerbox and Milligan

In after years I sat often of an evening over Scotch with Kay, when he no longer wore government clothes or nursed an ambition to shine at poker, but had married a "girl' and settled down to raising cattle and a family. He spoke of many things, but he never told me what his feelings were as he lay through that hot August afternoon on the floor at Bennet's, counting the slow hours, until a traveler came along near dusk and released him, and I neverable where a she lay through that hot August afternoon on the floor at Bennet's, counting the slow hours, until a traveler came along near dusk and released him, and I neverable where a she lay through that hot August afternoon on the floor at Bennet's, counting the slow hours, until a traveler came along near dusk and released him, and I neverable where the slow hours, until a traveler came along near dusk and released him, and I never asked. There are subjects which may not be touched upon even between friends.—Bleasdell Cameron in Argonaut.

Brigham Young.

Brigham Young.

Brigham Young was a fine, tall, well developed figure, a trifle too stout, perhaps; a fresh, ruddy complexion, almost befitting a young girl; keen blue eyes, not telling too much of what went on behind them; a full mouth, a singularly magnetic manner, a voice hard and cold in its formal speech, but low and impressive when used confidentially; altogether a man of mark anywhere and one whose wonderful influence over the minds and purses of men and the hearts and principles of women could be much more fully credited after an hour's conversation than before.

Glancing at Joseph Smith's portrait, we ventured the criticism that it did

Business men often

Business men often express the opinion that there is one thing which will prevent women from completely filling man's place in the business world — they can't be depended upon because they are sick too often. It is true that many women are compelled to look forward to times when they are unable to attend to social or business duties. Their appearance plainly indicates their condition and they are reluctant dicates their condition and they are reluctant to be seen, even by their friends. VIOLA ALLEN AS GLORY QUAYLE IN "THE CHRISTIAN."

Caine's dramatic version of his famous novel, "The Christian," has esthe most phenomenal success ever scored by any dramatic production America in many years. It ran 22 weeks in New York to receipts exzeption, and coming to Boston, is now repeating its great metropolitan Boston Museum, taking over $13,000 each week at the box-office. "The "is a great play. It possesses more heart interest than any piece ever the English language. Its sentiment is of that deep and sincere that appeals with effect to everyone who witnesses it. But, notwiththe success of the drama, it cannot be gainsaid that its extraordinary ception has been very largely due to the talent of Miss Viola Allen, the die organization that presents it, who has made an unparalleled hit as ayle, the heroine.

Mrs. Mary G. Pierce.

The subject of this notice, Mrs. Mainy G. Pierce, widow of the late Emension of the North Main street, this city, about one o'clock last Monday morning. She had recently received severe injuries from a fall, but these, the doctors said, did not occasion her death. Heart failure was the probable cause.

Mary Gardner was born on October I, 1820. She was the daughter of Captain Joseph and Martha Gardner. She was married to Mr. Ebenezer L. Pierce, who died a few years ago, on May 17, 1848, and has always been a resident of Woburn. She had been an active and exemplary member of First church and of the societies connected with it since March 7, 1852, and by these she will be greatly missed.

Mrs. Pierce discharged the duties of wife, mother and member of society, faithfully and well. Her sphere of action was not wide, but the things that came to her hand to do were conscientiously done. Her life was centred in the home, and this she adorned by unremitting exercises of Christian graces. She was large hearted and a woman of ara good judgment. Her sympathies embraced all who needed sympathy, and they were not of the passive kind. She had no enemies, and everyone estemed and liked her.

The functional man and the standard of the societies of their divident of the passive kind. She had no enemies, and everyone estemed and liked her. Theodore L., Edward G., of Bedford, Roscoe P., and E. Winslow.

The functional man sheld at her late residence, Rev. Des. March and Scudder conducted the religious exercises.

Washington correspondents preduct that Gen. Miles will file technical objections to the Beef Report when published, which will doubtless be against him. The grounds which he will take, so it is said, will be that the Court, or Commissioners, was not legally constituted. This would be a foolish thing for him to do. If he has been defeated on the merits of the case he would win no sympathy by "crying baby," which is what such a plea as it is said he proposes to put would amount to.

J. L. Steffens supplies a valuable chapter in recent politics in the story of Theodore Roosevel's experiences with the political reformers and political step of the political reformers and political step of the gold and the political reformers and politicians during his recent canvass for the Governorship of New York and since. A new and fuller view of Admiral Dewey and his way of deading with affairs in the Philippines is given in Stories of Admiral Dewey. Ray Stannard Baker gives a popular exposition of Dr. T. J. J. See's new theory, that as a gaseous body shrinks its temperature increases, and that the sun is at present not growing colder, but rapidly hotter. The special literary features of the number are an excellent short story by Kiping, The Flag of their Country; a series of poems of the gold trail, by Hamlin Garland; and, particularly, the opening install, ment of a novel of American life, The Gentleman from Indiana. This last is very distinguished. The characters are presented with masterly individuality; they and the whole scene and atmosphere in which they move are charming; and, finally, the incidents in which they are involved have unfailing freshness and often become intensely dramatic. Carter's the sunlight to us. An examination of moonlight with the spectroscope shows, of course, the same spectrum as that of sunlight. The quality of the reflection is indicated in the announcement that it would take no fewer than 618,000 full moons to supply to us an amount of light equal to that which we get from the sun, and there is only sky rcom for, say, 75,000 of them. Some heat comes from the meon, but ordinary method will not measure it. However, it is estimated that it is about one-eighty thousandth of the amount which the sun supplies to us. The inclination of the moon's orbit to the horizon accounts for the harvest and the hunterlymon, which occur when the tipping is slightest, thus permitting the moon to rise about the same time for several successive evenings. The moon often appears much enlarged when on the horizon, but this is caused by the refractive feature of the air about the horizon and the natural tendency to compare it with terrestrial objects.—Ladies' Home Journal. Nothing galls the natural pride of the true blue Scotchman more than thave Scotland overlooked. A strikin have Scotland overlooked. A striking instance of this feeling is said to have occurred at the battle of Trafalgar Two Scotchmen, messmates and bosom cronies, happened to be stationed near each other when the celebrated signal was given from Admiral Nelson's ship. He was given a warm welcome and relished the Parisian conversation in which he joined. An intimate friend of Mme. de Languet—a young and handsome widow, evidently a dangerous person—was often quoted. When in the narroy circle some incredible enormity of Mrs.

Councilor Tann was told, M. de Languet invariably exclaimed:

"Wouldn't that delight your friend. Zozo?"

Mme. de Languet always laughingly replied:

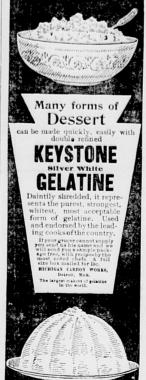

"Yes! Wouldn't they hit it off together?"

And then they would show Tek, the miscreant, Zozo's photograph. She was a beauty.

In some ways this may have been a good thing. Men and women have died when their active careers were ended and the populations harried by the struggle for existence were not bothered unduly by the care of the aged. To Classify Pupils.

I consider it not only a pleasure but a duty I ows to my neighbors to tell about the wonderful cure effected in my case by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholers and Diarrhoa Remedy. I was taken very badly with flux and procured a bottle of this remedy. A few doses of it effected a permanent cure. I take pleasure in recommending it to others suffering from that dreadful disease.—J. W. Lynch, Dorr, W. Va. This remedy is sold by Gordon Parker, Druggist.

Robbed the Grave.

A starting incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject of grading and classifying school children was discussed. It was agreed that the attempt to yoke together the dull and the bright pupils was a failure and misfortune. Principal Shearer of New Jersey said:

"It is now generally acknowledged that the demon of uniformity, born of the examination fiend and the usual plan of grading, not only menaces the intellectual vigor of all the pupils, but that it also makes impossible the best training of any, and materially shortens the school life of the large majority. the school life of the large majority.

Of all the problems which confront those interested in the advancement of the schools, no other affects more vitally the present and future welfare of the boys and girls in our schools. Accurate classification of pupils, that those of about equal ability and attainments may be placed together. 'Be ye not unequally yoked' applies here as elsewhere.

'What sane man would yoke together as highbred, mettlesome racer and the heavy draft horse? All know that it would forever end the usefulness of the racer. Why, then, should we compel the poor teacher to hold in lockstep the nervous child of excellent home training and of unusual mental and physically weak playmate; who knows nothing of the advantages of home training! Is not a child of more value than many horses?"

STILL AT IT.

There is no apparent let up to the resoluting and speechifying of the crazy headed men and women of Boston who style themselves anti-imperialists. The less notice that is taken of them, and the more impotent their manifestors become, the more rabid and vociferous they grow. But they are a harmless lot, and the only thing to be regretted is that the Postmaster General should bave deemed Atkinson's insane attacks on the Administration and Army of sufficient importance to order the rot pected at the postoffice by July 1. was pleased to receive a call from Col. Charles F Woodward, a large owner in and General Manager of all the Street Railways in this vicinity. He was not feeling entirely amiable over the restrictions and conditions imposed by the Woburn Council on building the North Woburn and Wilmington link, which were unjust and unreasonable. He said it was utterly out of the questions and conditions in the council on building the North Woburn and Wilmington link, which were unjust and unreasonable. He said it was utterly out of the questions. On last Wednesday the JOURNAL street.

He said it was utterly out of the question to comply with them and construction of the link would have to be abandoned unless the Council should modify them. If that link is built it will give a straight line of electric road from Lowell to Boston with a fare of only 30 cents. Woburn wants the line, but cannot have it unless the link from No. Woburn to Wilmington, which is only two miles long, is made. The Council which is a large with the street of the Burlington concert. The Eastern Division of the American Canoe Association will hold a meeting on Horn Pond, this city, on May 27—30, inclusive, for which Innituo Canoe Club are making extensive preparations, as the visitors will be their guests during the meet. The enlargement of their clubhouse was partly in view of this occasion.

The Innituous will leave nothing undone to render the affair in the highest degree pleasant and satisfactory to everyone connected with it. A camp will be established in a grove on the westerly side of Horn Pond, a fine spot for such a purpose, where there will be a lauding float, mes-house, and other quarters. Tents will be provided for those who notify the Club before May 24. Meals will be provided by a caterer. A ferry will connect the samp with the shore at Lake avenue which is the nearest point to the Cross street station on the Southern Division of the B. & M. raiiroad.

On Saturday evening, May 27, the local Club will provide an entertainment complimentary to the Division. It is exposed that about 150 canoeists in the several to make the submits of whothern Division of the B. & M. raiiroad.

HIS SPANISH GIRL.

I wondered why Barry should be sitting alone in the garden at 10 o'clock on a fine midwinter night. As I remembered him, he had been a sociable sort of fellow, fond of gayety and pretty girls, and there was a cotillon going on indoors in the ballroom. I wondered, too, where his wife was, for he had told me he was married.

It was six years since I had last seen him. We had been boys together, just out of college, and I had visited him for a summer in the southern part of the state, where his home had always been and where his family was one of the few "old" ones which could rightly lay claim to gentility of other than mushroom growth.

After that visit I had gone back to San Francisco and to a truly San Francisco state, with the result

why. She told a most blood curdling tale of parental cruelty. It wasn't true. I've found that out since. She was only 16, but she could tell an extraordinarily good lie. As a matter of fact, she had found that a particular flame of hers was going to take another girl to some shindy. But the cruel treatment story did nicely, and I comforted her—she was such a mere child, I honestly

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I had been a constant sufferer for nearly three years. Had inflammation of the womb, leucorrhœa, heart trouble, bearing-down pains, backache, secreted the dead man under a hedge and lay down in his place. He was duly transferred to a cart, but when about half the journey was over one of the men who had touched his hand screamed to his friend, "Good heavens, the body is warm!"

Hereupon, in a deep voice, the supposed dead man remarked, "If you had been where I've been for the last two days, you'd be warm too!"

"Gimme a match, will you, old man?"

Toppington had entered Throttle's office just before the noon hour. "Of course," said Throttle, offering his caller the desired article, and as Toppington lighted his half burned cigar Throttle exclaimed, "Oh, by Jove, old man Did I show you a novelty that I picked up when I was down in New York last week?"

"Why, you throw them in the air and they light. See?"

Accompanying his word with the appropriate action, Throttle tessed one of the vestas from his hand. It fell as any ordinary match would have done.
"There," exclaimed Toppington, "it didn't do anything of the kind. It didn't light."
"You're mistaken," was Throttle's reply "It did, don't you see, it lit there on the floor.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

The next morning Mme. Fischer called at the hotel once more, accompanied by the court chamberlain, who bore the promised check, an autograph letter of thanks from the king and some jewels of great value. Mme. Fischer's explanation of the concert fiasco pleased Patti more than the jewels. King Ladwig, she said, was in one of his maddest moods, wild with regret, cursing himself and cursing Patti. He had walked the floor all night, groaning that he was a traitor, for Patti's voice had so ravished his senses that for one moment he had gone over to Italian music and had been false to Wagner - to Wagner, the one musician who alone had satisfied his majesty's soul.

"No: what was it?"

"A peculiar kind of a match," was Throttle's reply as he rose and dove into the pocket of his overcout that hung on a peg the other side of his desk.

Returning, he held out to Toppington a handful of matches that looked like the ordinary article.

SENSIBLE TALK.

In another column of this paper of the found a condensation of an address delivered by Mr. Salem D. Charlesbefore the Franklin County Teachers Association last Friday. He is at In another column of this paper may Association and the state of the second and is interested in pupular education; therefore it is fair to presume that hunderstood himself when talking.

He stated things that the JOURNAL has been contending for and bringing to the attention of school authorities for years, and it is gratifying to us to be able to submit for perusal the word of Mr. Charles in support of our position. Nor is Mr. Charles the only educated friend of the public school system (properly administered) who believes in their failure to do justice to the rising generation as at present cou-ducted. It was only a few weeks ag-that we read of an upheaval in the Newton schools on the points brough out by the Boston Street Commissioner out by the Boston Street Commissioner. The present system of teaching was strongly condemned there, or rather the system of non-teaching. Just prior to that a learned Chicago Professor threw hot shot into the fashions that prevail in public school teaching.

The fact is, eminent educators and General Orders, No. 1.

COMRADE: Not alone in compliance with General Orders, but in response to the natural impulse of our hearts, we to pay our annual tribute of respect and affection, with music, speech and flowers, to the memory of our comrades who have been transferred to the service of our decrease of the coming Memorial Day becomes of far greater significance than ever before, and we are solemnly reminded by our fast depleting ranks that we are going down the hiliside of life with steps never to be retraced. Four of our old comrades who, from long association had become near and dear to us, have been called from our side since last we formed around the graves of our departed comrades, and the memorial tribute which they ever so faithfully paid to others will now be paid to them. They were permitted to reach the allotted space of three score years and ten, supplementing their fidelity and loyalty to country in time of War, with true and honorable citizenship in days of Peace—respectable in the supplementing their fidelity and loyalty to country in time of War, with true and honorable citizenship in days of Peace—respectable of the S. An Epidemic of Whooping Cough.

Last winter during an epidemic of whooping cough my children contracted the disease, having severe coughing spells. We had used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy keyr successfully for roup and naturally turned to it at that time and found it relieved the cough and effected a complete cure—John E Chipronn, Proprietor Narwood flouse, Norwood, N. Y. This remedy for sale by Gordon Parker, Druggist.

Rev. Dr. Scudder preached an able found attention. Always strong and often eloquent who are the second attention. Always strong and often eloquent who are the second attention and the second attention are second at the second attention and the second attention attention and the second attention attention attention and the second attention att sermon which was listened to with pro-found attention. Always strong and often eloquent, when patriotism is the keynote he attunes his thoughts and words to it and never fails to interest and arouse the enthusiasm of his hearers. Our readers will take it for organ caught the music was fine. The organ caught the spirit of the occasion and under Mr. Hood's skilful touch and under Mr. Hood's skilful touch pealed forth stirring notes. The vocal selections were appropriate and splendidly executed by the choir.

The military and others re-assembled at 7 o'clock in the evening to listen to an address by Chaplain House of the Frifth Regiment. They were amply rewarded for their pains. Chaplain House is an orator and he maintained his reputation Sunday evening. He is his reputation Sunday evening. He is an American. His greatgrandfather fought in the American Revolution; his grandfather in the War of 1812; his father laid down his life in the Civil War; and the Chaplain, born 8 days before the firing on Fort Sumpter, was in the Spanish War with the "Dandy Fifth." His address was deeply interesting. Fine music was furnished

It appears that one idle day the frog the duck, the lamb and the skunk started forth together to visit the show. Just what sort of show it was the chronicler doesn't state. Anyway, it was some thing that the queerly assorted quartet was anxious to attend, and they hopped and waddled and gamboled and trotted toward the big canvas inclosure with delightful throbs of anticipation.

Finally they reached the doortender, the frog leading the line.

on the outside. He had only a scent, and that was bad. Naturally he turned away, feeling pretty blue. As he was slowly going back over the hill he met a hoop snake rolling along at a lively rate toward the show. The skunk greeted him, but the snake did not stop.

"Don't interrupt me," he cried over his shoulder. "I've got to do a turn, and I'm a little late," and he rolled along.

At the top of the hill the skunk noticed another old friend approaching. It was the sardine.

"Hello!" cried the sardine. "What's the matter?"

So the skunk told him.

"I can gness how you feel about it," said the sardine sympathetically to belong to the smelt family myself. But, say, old fellow, you come right back and go in with me—I've got a box."

And the skunk and the sardine went back treather. "Cleapard Plain Dealer back treather." Cleapard Plain Dealer back treather. And the skunk and the sardine back together. - Cleveland Plain Dealer

The spoonbill is probably the largest fish that swims the Ohio river. He is anywhere from a foot long to six feet, but also half of him is bill. The bill is spoon shaped, but is a single one. The lower lip is short, the bill being used much like a spade. The spoonbill has no scales, but is covered with a tough hide. Altogether he is an uncanny object and far from a delicacy in appearance. He is also called by some "shovel nose cat."

We know of no city in all this land, and excepting Hoboken or Jersey City, which is less national in its feelings, its ideas and its aspirations than New York. It has never yet done anything really national. There was not public spirit enough in the well to do classes of the town to even build the pedestal of the Liberty statue. The same classes waited years and went begging all over the country to raise a fund for the Grant monument—a duty which, in 1885, they claimed as their peculiar privilege. But New York is New York. Would Not Suffer So Again for Fifty Times
Its Price.

I awoke last night with severe pains in my stomach. I never felt so badly in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work.
I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Collec, like magic and one dose fixed me all right.

It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomweh trouble. I shall not be without

Our Two Old Burying-Grounds.

As one of the squad of four, representing the so-called patriotic hereditary societies, now so numerous in the land, I assisted in replenishing the flags a few days ago over the graves of such Bevolutionary soldiers as are marked by monuments in the several Woburn burying-grounds, or cemeteries. The number of graves so marked is seventy, nine. There did not appear to be any greater signs of neglect in the older yards than was apparent during our excursion of last year, and the evidence of vandalism was less.

The question arose in my mind as the party surveyed the condition of the graves of the safety part of said woburn, dared the primise sortevilatily as follows—A certain parel of land scientifications are considered and the primise sortevilatily as follows—A certain parel of land scientifications are considered and the primise sortevilatily as follows—A certain parel of land scientifications are considered and the primise sortevilatily as follows—A certain parel of land scientifications are considered to the safety part of said woburn, are considered to the safety part of said woburn.

The question arose in my mind as the party surveyed the condition of the two old yards, who is responsible for the neglected aspect of the surface of these yards? Could not its condition be improved? Could not its condition be improved? Could not the grass be trimmed—occasionally, at least? Could not the broken stones be repaired, and fallen ones reset? Whose business is it to care for these things? The grounds are the undoubted property of the City of Woburn, inherited from the distant past, at a time when the parish was the recognized unit or division of town territory for religious and secular pur poses. The parish had the charge and care of the burying-grounds, a responsibility placed upon it by custom, if not be will be supported to the summoured as six of the summour of the six and the part of Woburn. included in Burlington, was formed into a second parish, giving two parishes to the reduced limits of Woburn. This condition continued until about one hundred years ago, when the separation of Burlington as a town, and the general change in the relations between town and parish throughout the Commonwealth ended the state of affairs which had formerly existed.

The town continued to hold the first burling ground, and the second having the second probability of the second probability of the second having the second probability of the second probability o burial ground, and the second having been started by the first parish as a parish burial ground, was, in course of time, bought by the town and became time, bought by the town and became the second town cemetery. The first yard is that on Park street, and the second is that on Montvale Avenue. The third yard is the Woburn Cem-tery (now called Woodbrook Cemetery) on Salem street. This is the whole history of the present Woburn (public) cemeteries in a nut shell, without giv-ing dates.

The town, or city, therefore, or the owner of these two old yards, concerning which I have said thus much. II I place a monument on any of these grounds, no matter whether at a cost of a few dollars or many thousands, I do so in the confident hope that the city, or its proper officials, will care for it. If no opposition from constituted authority is made to my act, I feel that I am entitled to its protection. I must not expect of poor human nature extraordinary efforts, but reasonable care of my memorial.

The town, or city, therefore, or the public, if I may so state it, is the owner of these two old yards, concerning which I have said thus much. If I Boston, May 31, 1899.

And what should be suggested as a remedy? I would suggest what, for the want of a better name, I would call the Arlington plan. In Arlington the old burying-ground is put in excellent order and the fallen monuments righted by a concerted effort on the part of the local historical society and the town. The local historical society has a hundred members and is a power in such matters and on the occasion of anniversary celebrations.

There are certain things which the

There are certain things which the city in its organized capacity cannot so well do as private individuals, or associations composed of private persons having a common interest in one object. The city having furnished the markers for the graves of its Revolutionary soldiers—the same as in other places—has performed an important part of its duty in the premises, and it would be naturally expected that the descendants of the persons buried in these yards would take greater interest in the care, than those of ancestry There are certain things which the

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation to the care. Than those of ancestry foreign to the place. Yet the general appearance of these yards is not creditable to the good name of the city, and the Arlington plan of having the members of an active local historical society care for the cutting of the grass, and the general righting up and repair of the monuments is a perfectly feasible one, relieving the public of a large share of its burden.

Could not the yards be properly policed by the Cemetery Commissioners or the city government?

When a youngster of 10 years. I was visited by a plague of warts. From my earliest recollection I had had on my middle finger an old daddy wart, but at the age stated this had multiplied to 40 or more, one being on my lip and one on my chin. I was considerably worried over my growing family of excrescences, and one day a woodchopper in my father's employ, who acted queerly, neverting a hat, for instance, said that he could take the warts away with him. I was quite willing to have him try, and he took me off to a quiet spot under a willow tree, from which he cut a number of small branches, and these he cut again into little bits of an inch in length, making a notch in each one, and this notch he set down over each wart, having at last a collection of 40 or more of these little notched sticks. These he put into his pocket, saying that the warts would go away.

I could never say just when the prophecy was fulfilled, but within six weeks there wasn't a wart on my face or hands, and there has not been one since that time. What I want to know now, as I did them—and the conjurer would not tell me—is what did it.

His brother-in-law, David T. Littler, was a candidate for state treasurer. He had been to some pains to make his candidacy an organized feature of the days preceding the convention. When Oglesby was named for governor, Littler was put out of the calculations by reason of coming from the next county and was side tracked in consequence. Although Mrs. Oglesby and Mrs. Littler were sisters, the houses of Oglesby and Littler were far apart from that time. The heads were so completely estranged that one did not speak to the other. Ammonia as a Fire Extinguisher.

Ammonia as a Pire Extinguisher.

Probably the best fire extinguishing liquid is aqua ammonia, without any addition whatever. We have personally had experience with the almost marvelous power of this substance in this direction. In one instance, where fire had originated probably from spontaneous combustion, in a pile containing several tons of cotton seed, and the interior of which was almost a solid body of live coal, a half gallon of ammonia completely smothered the fire.

In another, which occurred at Savenay, France, the vapors of a tank containing 50 gallons of gasoline caught fire in the linen room of a laundry. The room was instantly a mass of living fames, but a gallon and a half of ammonia water thrown into it completely and almost immediately extinguished the fire. The ammonia was in a glass demijohn in an apothecary shop next door to the laundry and was thrown into the room by the druggist as an experiment. So completely was the fire extinguished periment. So completely was the fire extinguished that workmen were en of gasoline intact. - National Druggist

The Diet of the Consumptive.
Dr. Cutter of New York, one of the editors of The Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette, declares the most important part of the treatment of tuberculosis patients is the diet. It should, he says, consist largely of animal foods. Of these, eggs and milk should prepender ate. Eggs are best given raw when the patient can take them thus. The albomen of the egg is similar to blood albomen and is digested, or rather absorbed, into the blood without undergoing an elaborate digestive process. The white of the egg, mixed with water, is often tolerated when the yolk cannot be borne by the stomach. Bone marrow of the ox he regards as of greater value than cod liver oil. Good butter may be used freely and should be spread thickly on thin slices of bread. Heavy means are to be avoided. The patient should take small quantities of food between meals.

The defense contended that the man had shot himself while trying to draw his pistol, which had become entangled in the lining of the pocket, and that the prisoner's shot had not taken effect. The prosecution contended that such a wound could not have been self inflicted.

The defendant's counsel, Clement L. Vallandigham, undertook to demonstrate to the jury just how the dead man's pistol had hung in the pocket and just how possible it was to inflict such a wound. Suddenly there was a loud report, and the lawyer sank to the floor.

This Dog Can Spell.

There is a South Side lady who owns a Gordon setter which she believes is endowed with almost human intelligence. This is not a hastily formed nor unfounded opinion, but has been developed by years of experience. Here is one of the many incidents from which has sprung her faith in her dog:

Last Sunday, having finished her dinner, the lady went into the drawing room to read the paper. On a rug near the window the setter was basking drowsily in the sun. The lady's two sons were still in the dining room finishing the repast, and the mother overheard something said about bones. Now, the good lady has a mortal dread Now, the good lady has a mortal dread that her beautiful dog will choke to death on a bone some day, so, raising bule of the Boston Theatre, aroused interest in this puzzling triumph in things that deceive. "The Girl in the Moon" is not a picture, but just what it is the Chicago Exhibition Company, which brought it here from Europe for a limited engagement, does not say, and as yet no one has fathomed the mystery. However, this much may be said of it, that it is one of the cleverest inventions to deceive that has ever been produced. In connection with "The Girl in the Moon" there is a free exhibition, day and evening, of the great Pantoscope int the outer lobby of the theatre.

Literary Notices.

For a description of Marconi's wireless telegraph that anybody can understand, and an account of its lates achievements, readers may be referred to the June number of McCluure's Magazine. The article is written with the assistance of Mr. Marconi by Mr.
Cleveland Moffett, who sent and received messages by the wireless telegraph across the English Channel; and is fully illustrated from photographs taken expressly for the purpose. Another interesting article in this number of McCluure's is an account of nego tiations between Admiral Dewey and the Spanish commanders that led to the final surrender of Manila. It is written by Oscar King Davis, Manila correspondent of the New York Sun, For a description of Marconi's wirerespondent of the New York Sun from the diary of M. Edouard Andre the Belgian consul at Manila, through whom the negotiations were conducted It is, therefore, authoritative. It gives new illustration of the rare tast and sagacity of the American admiral. A graphic account of the strange life of the miners who work a mile out under the sea off the coast of Cornwall; reminiscences and anecdotes of Lincoln and the Soldiers; and a dramatic de-scription of Paul Jones's Greatest Fight, by the Rev. C. T. Brady, are Fight, by the Rev. C. T. Brady, are other attractive features of the number. With an excellent story by Kipling and other short stories, and a second install ment of Booth Tarkington's absorbing novel, The Gentleman from Indiana, there is also an especially good provision of fiction. He Raised a Storm.

A handsome young fellow stood at the glove country of a large store the other day and fairly hypnotized the four girl attendants.

He had a word for one, a smile for another, a wiss for a third and a pink for the fourth—by far the pretiest of the quartet.

The floral offering was too much for the pinkless three, and they all turned on the radiant recipient of the flower.

"Say, Nedlie Norries, you're too fresh! Ain't you got a nerve! Flirting that way with a stranger."

His Counterpart.

"I never expected to hear of Wellup marrying anybody. He was such a tender young widow!"—Chicago Tribune.

"Dropped" Eggs.

What we la New England call dropped eggs all the rest of the country and poached eggs, but I am going to stick to the name in spite of everything and the method law route.

A bluff old farmer with a loud voice got in at a little station and walked down the aisle looking for a freindly face or a kindly eye, but not seeing any he asked the most sour looking man on the car to move over and give him a seat. The fellow did so, but with a manner that indicated that the old man was anything but welcome. The old farmer wanted to talk, and tried in every way to engage his seatmate in conversation, but the through passenger would have none of it. He turned his shoulder to the farmer and gazed out of the window with a bored expression on his face. The old farmer was determined to draw him out, and after several infectual efforts raised his voice loud enough to be heard all over the car and said:

She'll Never Tell.

The last act was just closing at the Lyceum the other evening, and the actors and actrosses were grouping for their final bow ensemble. In the house the ladies were putting on their gloves and getting their hats ready. A young man and a young lady well toward the front overheard this conversation:

"Why, Mary, I'm afraid I can't get these on. They're awfully tight."

"Oh, yes you can, Nell. Try again."

Nell evidently tried again, for there was silence for a moment.

"What shall I do? I can't get them on. That's what comes of wearing new shoes to the theater. They hurt me to that I simply had to take them off, and now they won't go on again.

Oh'"—

The remainder of the agony was lost.

The remainder of the agony was lo

The remainder of the agony was lost in the applause which greeted the fall of the curtain. All that history records of the denouement of the interesting story is that a woman was noticed going down the aisle with a pair of shoes under her arm. Whether she and Nell were one and the same is not certain. If so, how she got out of the difficulty is not told. It was raining, and perhaps she wore her rubbers. But this only she and her friend know, and it is safe to say that she at least will never tell.—Detroit Free Press.

It Was Always Raining.

In his book "Figures of the Past," Josiah Quincy tells of a journey that he made in stagecoach days—away back in 1862—from Boston to Washington, with Justice Story of the federal supreme court: The justice was telling of the routine of the court's Washington social life. "We dine," he said, "once a year with the president and that is all. On other days we take our dinner together and discuss at table the questions which are argued before us. We are great asceties and even deny ourselves wine, except in wet weather."

Here the judge paused, as if thinking the act of mortification he had

How tred he was now, and how he would like to sleep! It was to be only two hours of duty, then the relief would come. If he could only pace his beat, it would be some relief, but his orders were strict—not to move from

The Flight of Locusts.

Carruthers, in Nature, estimates a great flight of locusts that passed over the steamship Golconda when off the Great Hanish islands, in the Red sea, in November, 1889, at over 2,000 square miles in extent. The number of insects he calculates to have been 24,420,000,000,000 and the weight of the mass 42, 580,000,000 tons, each locust weighing one-sixteenth of an ounce, and a ship of 6,000 tons burden, he adds, must have made 7,000,000 voyages to carry thing. Another, apparently a stronger flight, was seen going in the same drection next day.

According to official accounts of locusts in Cyprus, no fewer than 1,600,000 og gases were collected and made away with in 1881, up to the end of the seer of the colt Limerick. A HAPPY REUNION.

The annual reunion and dinner of the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment Veterar Association was held at Woburn Post 161, G. A. R., Hall in this city, last Tuesday. The weather was simply delicious, seemingly prepared for the occasion and to make the Old Boys of 261-5 happy.

'61-5 happy.

The 9.45 a. m., train from Bosto brought quite a large number of Vet erans, and Lowell, Lawrence and other erans, and Lowell, Lawrence and ottowns and cities were numerously represented. The Boston contingent wermet at the railroad station by the local committee, consisting of Col. W. T. Grammer, William T. Kendall, Milton Moore, Capt. E. F. Wyer, Joseph Linnell, James Walker and others, and given a cordial greeting and warm wel-come to Woburn. The music they come to Woburn. The music they heard on alighting from the cars was, "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot?" It thrilled everybody.

Preceded by the Woburn Brass Band, Thomas J. Marrinan, Leader, after a brief wait at the station, the company of Veterans, under the command of Col. Daniels, the President, and direction of Chief Marshal, Milton Moore, fell into line and paraded some of the tion of Chief Marshal, Milton Moore, fell into line and paraded some of the streets near the Common, ending at the streets near the Common, ending at the Prince Edward's Island for a summer meeting. Flags were flying all over the city.

The Band went up with the new stand and handsomely dedicated it with a splendid concert of two hours duration, which was greatly enjoyed by a large concourse of people. It was a real holiday for our people—almost equal to the "Glorious Fourth."

At 1 o'clock, in step with the lively martial airs played by the Band, the Association, with invited guests, marched to Armory Hall to partake of a bangup repast prepared by Dill, the popular Boston caterer, and air their eloquence. They were a fine looking company of men, getting along in years, to be sure, but erect, of elastic step, and evidently capable of doing some more hard flighting if the safety of the Union required it.

Meteorological and other conditions were fairly favorable for the graduating exercises of Class '99 of the Woburn High School last Wednesday evening. and they were improved by a good part of the town, if one might be allowed to judge by the size of the crowd of people at the Auditorium on that Interesting occasion.

In point of interest the exercises were full up to the average, which, considering the high literary and musical standard of former classes, is no mean praise. It can be said without mental or other reservation that those who took part acquitted themselves handsomely. The Class consisted of between 50 and 60 members, divided between 50 and 60 members, divided between and a brighter appearing, or more intelligent aggregation of boys and girls, it would be no easy task to find. They did ample credit to their teachers, to Principal Owen, and Superintendent Emerson, not to omit to mention Mrs. Vanie B. Dow, Mrs. Jennie K. Adams, and Mr. Herbert S. Riley, the High School Committee of the School Board. In point of interest the exercises we

But it will be seen by the following programme that their themes were well selected, and that they were finely delivered is equally true Nearly 1400 people listened to them with profound attention. The Class motto was "Non Palma Sine Pulvere."

The stage looked very handsome indeed; from 20 feet away it suggested an immense flowerbed.

Necessarily, so far as this branch of the business is concerned, and there is a limit to their number. A little variety in arrangement is about all that can be accomplished. But flowers, flags and plants, with brilliant electric illumination, did much towards making the Auditorium a bower. The music was fine. Miss Jameson had her singers well in hand, and Miss Dora Winn accompanied on the pianoforte with her usual skill and grace. Miss Jameson showed great good taste and judgment in the selection of pieces, and it must be confessed that, however interesting the literary exercises, the music was a highly gratifying part of the excellent programme. To put a description of Commence ament Day exercises into pleasing words and sentences is no "boys' play" for the reporter, especially if he has been dicades, a statement which, we think, our readers cannot but endorse. THE SHRIMP DANCE.

A QUEER TRADE THAT FLOURISHES ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

It Is Monopolized by Chinamen, Who Supply Their Mother Country With the Pink Tinted Delicacy — Their Odd Methods of Working.

"Shrimps, shrimps," is a familiar cry in San Francisco, itinerant traders in San Francisco, illuerant traders having stands where these pink, many legged creatures are sold as peanuts are retailed elsewhere. The shrimp merchants are generally Portuguese or Italians, who by temptingly displaying their wares have created a demand for the succeptant morsals.

the succulent morsels.

The capture of the shrimps consti-The capture of the snripps consti-tutes an important industry around San Francisco, and an investigation made by a curious American some time ago showed that the fisheries were in the hands of the Chinese, who were engaged in supplying the Canton and other Chinese markets with shripping.

The Chinese shrimpers, or shrimp

The Chinese shrimpers, or shrimp dancers, as they are called, constitute a colony by themselves, and in the main represent as low a type of aliens as can be found on American shores. One might sail around the harbor of San Francisco for days and not see them, as their camps are concealed in certain out of the way nooks for reasons best known to themselves.

At one point, where the hills dip down to the sea, a settlement was found. Here were a number of shantles of the poorest description, and leading out from the beach several small wharfs, to which were anchored nondescript fishing boats. Leading up from the shantles were two squares of parallelograms about 90 by 300 feet, which were perfectly distinct from the rest of the soil and a delicate pink color.

their sides, hopping now on one foot, again leaping into the air, moving forward in a direct line, some following the sides, others crossing, in all pre-senting to the observers a ludicrous appearance. Yet the contrast of the blue blouses of the dancers and the delicate pink of the floor was not in-artistic.

Coming out of the bush and walking down the hill, the ground was found to be covered with pink shrimps. There were hundreds of them, drying in the sun, while with them were many young fishes.

The dancers were stamping on the shrimps to crush the shells. They did not resent the visit in words, but their looks suggested that the visitors were not welcome. The shanties were squalid in the extreme, containing rude bunks about which were hung the oil-skins of the fishermen, from which a peculiar odor rose and mingled with that of stale opium and old fish. In the corner of one of the shanties was a pagan temple, with some attempts at the splendors one sees in San Francisco. These traps are set between poles on the flats and cover the bottom, catching every shrimp and fish that appears. The nets are set mainly at night, often being hauled between midnight and sunrise.

The shrimps are brought in in large numbers, rolled in baskets and the following morning placed in vats of boiling water. In ten minutes they have assumed the delicate shrimp color. They are then taken out and placed on the level cleared spots and spread with brooms. Here they bake or dry for five or six days, after which the men with the wooden shoes begin what has been referred to as the shrimp dance. The shoes are so heavy that the wearers cannot move with much agility, so a curious shuffle and jumping up and down is the result—a dance which, if seen, might find place on the melodramatic stage.

The chief of the shrimp dance as has been described, is to pulverize the crustaceans, and pestles and hammers are also used to loosen the meat. From here they go to the basket shakers, who, by placing the crushed shrimps in baskets, a quart at a time, dislodge chine which winnows out the shells. to China. Heavy, single doors, such as are used in the United States, are practically unknown in Mexican houses, either at entrances or between interior rooms. All doors open in the middle and are fastened with bolts top and bottom. Exterior doors are always fitted with glass panels, for they also serve as windows. All such doors opening on the street or open court are fitted with solid shutters that are folded at the sides out of sight when not in use.

Over eighty thousand such letters as this were received by Mrs. Pinkham during 1897. Surely this is strong proof of her ability to help suffering women.

When he dined with the Smiths again, the fern was in the center of the table, and the major peered at it through his glasses and told her that she had a bargain. Before he left the table Mrs. Smith put a tablespoonful of water on the fern, and the major poured on a little more from his glass.

E. H. Sothern tells a good story of his father, the famous Dundreary. Whenever the elder Sothern arrived at a town, one of his first means of diversion was to stroll about the streets and have fun with the natives.
